Executive Summary

On June 7, 2013, Democracy Live submitted a request of the newest version of LiveBallot (LiveBallot™, Version 1.9.1) to the Florida Division of Elections for approval as an electronic ballot delivery system (EBDS).

The LiveBallot system is a web application available to county elections staff and voters with the use of any web-enabled computer. The system allows absentee military and overseas civilian voters to retrieve and return, by mail or fax, an absentee ballot to the county Supervisor of Elections (SOE) office. BVSC examined LiveBallot for election creation from the county Supervisor of Elections' staff perspective, the usability of the voter interface, the accuracy of the correct balloting and voter registration information, and ballot marking and printing. This examination included the use of LiveBallot with Dominion Voting Systems, Inc. (GEMS) and Election Systems & Software, LLC (Unity) certified voting systems election definition files.

By July 3, 2013, BVSC had received all of the documentation required to proceed with testing. The Bureau of Voting Systems Certification (BVSC) examined this system from August 12, 2013 through February 28, 2014, in Tallahassee, Florida. The test period was prolonged because of various required code and documentation modifications that were identified during the test process. It was not until December 20, 2013, that BVSC received the complete code and documentation necessary to test the LiveBallot system.

The results of the final examination verify that the LiveBallot system meets the requirements of the Florida Statutes and Rules, including the Florida Voting System Standards and the Florida Electronic Ballot Delivery System specifications. BVSC recommends approval of LiveBallot, Version 1.9.1, through the end of the calendar year 2014 for Florida counties using the GEMS or Unity systems. BVSC recommends interim approval for LiveBallot™, Version 1.9.1., for use by Florida counties using the GEMS or Unity systems. The approval is only through the end of the calendar year 2014. This electronic ballot delivery system is approved for this interim so that counties who have already received Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP) grants for these systems can proceed with these grants. However, as noted in the report, no future versions submitted for approval shall include the functionality of being able to edit the official election ballot from LiveBallot™.

Introduction/System Overview

On June 7, 2013, Democracy Live submitted a new initial application for approval of LiveBallot™, Version 1.9.1 (LiveBallot), as an electronic ballot delivery system (EBDS). BVSC conducted testing during the period August 12, 2013 through February 28, 2014, in Tallahassee, Florida.

Live Ballot is a an electronic ballot delivery system that absentee military and overseas civilian voters can use to retrieve and return, by mail or fax, an absentee ballot to the county Supervisor of Elections (SOE) office. It is a web-based application that displays the balloting information to the voter.

Using the Internet, the voter has the ability to access his or her blank absentee ballot and voter certification online. The voter then has the option to print the marked ballot and voter certification for return to the county Supervisor of Elections' office by either mail or fax or print their blank absentee ballot for manual marking and return to the county SOE by mail or fax.

Objective

The BVSC's objective was to verify that the system submitted by Democracy Live met the requirements of the Florida Statutes and Rules, including the Florida Voting System Standards and the Florida Electronic Ballot Delivery System Specifications (Appendix B). If the system was deemed to be satisfactory, BVSC would recommend the system for approval and use by Florida's overseas and military (UOCAVA) voters and Florida county Supervisors of Elections' offices that use the GEMS and Unity systems as part of their overall voting system.

Scope

This test effort included the examination of LiveBallot for use with the certified GEMS and Unity systems. However, other than producing the election definition files required for import into LiveBallot, BVSC did not review, examine, or test the previously certified GEMS and Unity voting systems.

Background

On September 25, 2011, Democracy Live submitted a request for a review of their electronic ballot delivery system, LiveBallot, for overseas and military voters. On September 29, 2011, BVSC notified Democracy Live of required information needed to move forward with the approval process. Democracy Live responded with the additional items on October 4, 2011. BVSC reviewed the information and began testing in October 2011. On December 14, 2011, the Division of Elections provided interim approval for use of LiveBallot with the Unity and GEMS systems in Florida elections. The Division chose to grant an interim approval because the LiveBallot application did not fully satisfy the requirement of allowing a county election official to use the system without Democracy Lives' assistance in administering and implementing the upload of election data onto the Democracy Live website.

On April 5, 2012, the Division of Elections extended the interim approval of LiveBallot so that jurisdictions within Florida would be able to participate in federally-sponsored and/or funded programs to conduct research in new voting methods. The approval extension allowed a county to use the LiveBallot system through the end of the 2012 Primary and General Election cycle with the expiration date of November 7, 2012.

On June 7, 2013, Democracy Live again submitted a new application for the approval of LiveBallot. On July 2, 2013, after reviewing the initial application and documentation, BVSC notified Democracy Live that the LiveBallot submission was incomplete and identified the missing items that needed to be submitted in order to consider the application complete. On July 3, 2013, Democracy Live submitted the missing information. BVSC approved the submittal and began testing on August 12, 2013.

This test report includes results from the BVSC's examination of the LiveBallot electronic ballot delivery system. The BVSC tested the system in its test lab at 2661 Executive Center Circle, Clifton Building, Tallahassee Florida, from Monday, August 12, 2013 through Friday, February 28, 2014. The test period was prolonged because of various required source code modifications and documentation changes that were identified during the test process, including as follows:

On September 4, 2013, BVSC suspended testing due to an issue discovered during the ballot preview process. This necessitated the implementation of a code change and, thus, BVSC was required to re-test LiveBallot from the beginning. On October 1, 2013, Democracy Live notified BVSC that the code modification had been finalized and uploaded to the website and testing began again that same day.

On November 25, 2013, BVSC notified Democracy Live of inconsistencies with the GEMS and Unity administrative settings within the LiveBallot application and with the online instructional documentation for the county administrator module. This revealed that there were configurable 'administrative' options available to Democracy Live personnel. BVSC explained that this information should have been submitted as a part of the technical data package and suspended testing until Democracy Live submitted this settings documentation. BVSC received the documentation on December 20, 2013, and after review and determination of the appropriate settings, BVSC sent the information back to Democracy Live for implementation. On February 12th BVSC again began testing. Staff completed the examination on February 28, 2014.

Components under Review

BVSC reviewed the election administration and voter interface LiveBallot web-based applications.

BVSC tested the configurable settings for the election administration module. The following account settings for all Florida counties using LiveBallot, Version 1.9.1., are configured with these specific settings. The following table lists each setting and whether the county has permission to make changes or are prevented from making changes:

Conduct of Tests / Findings

Elections used for this testing effort were:

County	Election System	Election
St. Lucie	GEMS	2012 Primary
Miami-Dade	Unity	2006 General

The elections included partisan and non-partisan races, closed primary races, Universal Primary races, split precincts, multiple language ballots and multiple page ballots.

The BVSC used the LiveBallot to create test elections for the two election management systems used in the examination. The following details the test activities and findings for the LiveBallot System:

1. GEMS

- A. Used the LiveBallot website for the test election and to mark multiple ballots for the St. Lucie County 2012 Primary Election, with ballots for Republican, Democratic and Non-Partisan parties in English.

Expected Results: The correct ballot should be displayed for each voter and their party.

Findings: LiveBallot displayed the correct ballot to the voter.

- B. Tested LiveBallot administrative options to import election data files, voter instruction files, a voter registration file, and to change text in the on-screen instructions.

Expected Results: Florida LiveBallot operations should not change because of county-created text. LiveBallot should properly display and/or print the county-uploaded files or county-defined text in place of the defaults.

Findings: The County can upload or change any or all of the forms, voter registration files, instructions, help files, etc. There were no issues with uploading new or revised voter registration files as needed. The file was verified, was displayed, and printed properly.

While staff can make basic and quick edits to the official ballot content in LiveBallot, the data upload should be an exact match to the election definition. A risk exists when editing the official ballot content within LiveBallot. The content may not import correctly and the LiveBallot may not be an exact match to the official election ballot. Any changes or corrections should instead be finalized within the GEMS system and never in LiveBallot.

- C. Tested LiveBallot with files created from the BVSC GEMS system.

Expected Results: The LiveBallot should accurately function using election files obtained from the voting system servers.

Findings: LiveBallot created the election information correctly.

- D. Marked ballots for voters of different parties and precincts. Some of the races were undervoted and some were fully voted. LiveBallot prevents overvoting a race, so ballots with overvotes were not produced.

Expected Results: A voter should be able to review his or her candidate selections before the ballot is finalized and printed. The review should warn the voter about undervoted races.

Findings: The review page allows the voter to review selections before proceeding to the download page. The review page notifies the voter that 'No Selection' was made for an undervoted race. The voter can return to the ballot marking page and change any selection before finalizing the ballot. The voter can finalize and print the ballot containing the voter's selections.

- E. Examined whether a user could log into multiple, consecutive sessions using the same voter credentials.

Expected Results: A voter can terminate his or her session at any time and log into another voting session on the same election with the same credentials. Vote selections should not be saved between sessions.

Findings: The software application does not save the voter's selections between sessions. Once a voter has exited the application, the voter is able to log into the election again.

2. Unity Voting System

- A. Used the LiveBallot website to mark multiple ballots for the Miami-Dade 2006 General Election, with ballots in English, Spanish and Haitian Creole.

Expected Results: The correct ballot should be displayed for each voter with all languages available as required.

Findings: LiveBallot displayed the correct ballot to the voter with all three languages present on the ballot.

- B. Tested LiveBallot administrative options to import election data files, voter instruction files, voter registration file, and change text of on-screen instructions.

Expected Results: Florida LiveBallot operations should not change because of county-created text. LiveBallot should properly display and/or print the county-uploaded files or county-defined text in place of the defaults.

Findings: If staff attempts to import voting system text (.txt) files, rather than rich text format (.rtf) files, into the county administration module of LiveBallot, the uploaded text from an amendment/referendum may not properly or completely import. While the current documentation instructs the user to gather all .rtf files and does not reference .txt files, the following error message is displayed in the ballot review window with the attempted import of .txt files: "Neither the RTF or the TXT file was found." BVSC notified Democracy Live of this issue and they resolved this by removing 'TXT' from the error message and updating their documentation to instruction the user to convert any TXT to RTF before uploading.

While staff can make basic and quick edits to the official ballot content in LiveBallot, the data upload should be an exact match to the election definition. A risk exists when editing the official ballot content within LiveBallot. The content may not import correctly and the LiveBallot may not be an exact match to the official election ballot. Any changes or corrections should instead be finalized within the Unity system and never in LiveBallot.

Users have the option of saving elections reports on the Unity voting system server with either .txt or .rtf files and this error message implies that either file type will allow the election administrator to proceed if either of these file extensions is imported. BVSC has verified that Democracy Live has removed 'TXT' from the error message and updated the documentation to instruct the user to convert any TXT to RTF before uploading.

Staff also observed, when gathering the District Relations and Office and Candidate Reports, that additional steps and options presented to the administrator exist that are not addressed in the LiveBallot documentation. BVSC recommends that the instructions explain to counties that the files must be either initially saved in Unity as .rtf files or they must be converted to .rtf before import and that the additional steps when gathering the District Relations and Office and Candidate reports be appropriately outlined for the election administrator. Democracy Live has updated the documentation to instruct the user to convert any TXT to RTF before uploading.

The county can upload or change any or all of the forms, voter registration files, instructions, help files, etc. There were no issues with uploading new or revised voter registration files as needed. The file was verified, was displayed, and printed properly.

- C. Tested LiveBallot with files created from the BVSC Unity system.

Expected Results: The LiveBallot should accurately function using election files obtained from the voting system servers.

Findings: LiveBallot created the election information correctly.

- D. Marked ballots for voters of different parties and precincts. Some of the races were undervoted and some were fully voted. LiveBallot prevents overvoting a race, so ballots with overvotes were not produced.

Expected Results: A voter should be able to review his or her candidate selections before the ballot is finalized and printed. The review should warn the voter about undervoted races.

Findings: The review page allows the voter to review selections before proceeding to the download page. The review page notifies the voter that 'No Selection' was made for undervoted race. The voter can return to the ballot marking page and change any selection before finalizing the ballot. The voter can finalize and print the ballot of the voter's selections.

- E. Examined whether a user could log into multiple, consecutive sessions using the same voter credentials.

Expected Results: A voter can terminate his or her session at any time and log in to another voting session on the same election with the same credentials. Vote selections should not be saved between sessions.

Findings: The software application does not save the voter's selections between sessions. Once a voter has exited the application, the voter is able to log into the election again.

Test Results Summary

The BVSC examined the LiveBallot voter interface and noted no issues in the selection, display, or contents of any ballot presented to the voter. User instructions, voter certifications and labels displayed properly, including both the defaults and changes made by the county. The BVSC found that all ballots were correctly marked with the voter's selections. The printed ballots also confirmed to the voter's selections.

The LiveBallot county administration application allows a county to administer/implement an election without assistance from the vendor. The electronic ballots created in testing correctly reflect the data that was exported from the county's election management system with the exception of the noted issue with the .rtf and .txt files from the Unity election.

Recommendations

BVSC staff recommends interim approval for LiveBallot™, Version 1.9.1., for use in Florida by counties that use the GEMS or Unity systems. The approval is only valid through the end of the calendar year 2014.

During testing, BVSC made the following recommendations:

1. Modify the documentation to direct the user to save any text files in Unity as .rtf instead of .txt. If not, those files will need to be converted to .rtf by the user before importing into LiveBallot. Democracy Live resolved this by updating the documentation to instruct the user to convert any TXT to RTF before uploading. (see Appendix A)
2. Remove the "TXT" from the error message that reads "Neither the RTF or the TXT filed was found" whenever a user imports a Unity .txt. As noted previously, if a .txt is imported instead of an .rtf, the text will not display in the ballot review in LiveBallot or on the actual ballot. Democracy Live resolved this by removing 'TXT' from the error message. (see Appendix A)

BVSC notes that future versions, if submitted, need to:

1. Add detailed information and documentation for gathering the election data files needed from the Unity system. The District Relations and Office and Candidate Reports currently have options available to choose from when creating the report. No references in the documentation exist concerning which choices, if any, should be selected from the options presented.
2. Remove the function that allows ballot edits or revisions at the Online Ballot Data Review/Ballot Review stage for the GEMS and Unity systems. BVSC has made this recommendation previously during the testing period of earlier versions of the systems but it is now formalized as a direction in this report. In the future, the editing function should be limited to allow the official election ballot to only be edited from within the GEMS or Unity system and then re-imported into LiveBallot.

BVSC staff did not otherwise encounter errors during testing that would preclude a recommendation of approval.

Conclusion

---

Examination results affirm that the LiveBallot™, Version 1.9.1, meet the requirements of the Florida Statutes and Rules, including the Florida Voting System Standards and the Florida Electronic Ballot Delivery System specifications. BVSC recommends interim approval for LiveBallot™, Version 1.9.1., for use by Florida counties using the GEMS or Unity systems. The approval is only valid through the end of the calendar year 2014. This electronic ballot delivery system is approved for this interim so that counties who have already received Federal Voting Assistance Program (FVAP) grants for these systems can proceed with these grants. However, as noted in the report, no future versions submitted for approval shall include the functionality of being able to edit the official election ballot from LiveBallot™

Appendix A: Unity .rtf and .txt file error

Examples of the Unity .rtf reports error:

1. Documentation requires .rtf files:

Gather .rtf Files

- i. Navigate to the following directory: `../UNITY/EDM/ElectionName/ElectionName` to find the .RTF files.
- ii. Sort the directory by file type, and select and copy all the .rtf files into a new folder named RTF Files.
- iii. Create a new folder called RTF
- iv. Save all the .rtf files to the new RTF folder

Add the RTF folder to the Election Folder

2. If the files are saved as .txt in the Unity system and are imported as such, the user will receive the following error:

3. Updated Documentation requires .rtf files:

Gather .rtf Files

- i. Navigate to the following directory: `../UNITY/EDM/ElectionName/ElectionName` to find the .RTF files.
- ii. Sort the directory by file type, and select and copy all the .rtf files into a new folder named RTF Files. (Contest text may be stored in .txt files. If you have any text in .txt files, first copy the .txt files to the RTF Files folder. Then convert all .txt files to .rtf.)
- iii. Create a new folder called RTF
- iv. Save all the .rtf files to the new RTF folder
- v. Add the RTF folder to the Election Folder

4. Updated Error Message:

An RTF file for this contest could not be found.

Florida Electronic Ballot Delivery System Specifications:

Florida Electronic Ballot Delivery System Specifications

Version 2
March 19, 2013

Florida Department of State
Division of Elections
Bureau of Voting Systems Certification

Release History

Version	Date	Author	Revisions
1	April 5, 2012	David Drury	Initial Release
2	March 19, 2013	Jim Halter	Edit for clarity

Purpose: This document is a compilation and summary of the requirements for an electronic ballot delivery system (EBDS) found in the Florida Statutes, Florida Administrative Code (F.A.C.) rules, and the Voting System Standards.

Scope: This specification is intended to assist interested parties in understanding the Florida Statutes, F.A.C. Rules, and Voting System Standards as they pertain to Electronic Ballot Delivery Systems. This document is neither definitive nor is it controlling authority. It is believed to be correct as of the date of publication. In case of any conflict between this document and other sources, the Florida Statutes and the F.A.C. Rules are the controlling authority

Discussion: An Electronic Ballot Delivery System is an option for Florida counties to provide electronic ballot access for use with absentee military voters and overseas (UOCAVA) voters. Florida counties can also use EBDS as an alternate format for accessible access to voters having a disability (Section 101.662, Florida Statutes). EBDS requires an examination and approval by Florida Division of Elections (FLDoE) prior to sale or use within the state. Approval of EBDS may be limited to unique voter groups as specified in F.A.C. rules, Florida Statutes, and/or Federal grants.

The voter can electronically mark their votes and print out the marked ballot, or can optionally print out the blank ballot and mark the printed ballot by hand. The voter can return their marked ballot and voter certification by either mail or fax. Any other means to transfer the EBDS ballot are governed under F.A.C. rules, if allowed.

EBDS ballots are not official marksense ballots. A county election official must duplicate the voter's choices from the EBDS ballot onto the county's official ballot for use with a marksense tabulator. EBDS may include the use a 2D barcode method that contains the voter's choices for use with a ballot-on-demand (BOD) system to allow transfer of the voter's choices onto the county's official ballot without human duplication. Please note, however, that canvassing of these ballots is still required and ballot duplication will be open to the public, per statute (s. 101.5614, F.S.).

A Florida county must be able to setup, administer, operate, and maintain the EBDS without assistance from the vendor. A county may contract with the vendor of an EBDS to perform any or all of these services, at the county's option.

Requirements: An EBDS shall allow a Florida county to produce the electronic election and ballot definition without assistance from the vendor.

An EBDS shall allow a Florida county to perform all processes to setup, administer, operate, and maintain the EBDS, or to create, publish, or administer an election in the EBDS, without assistance from the vendor.

The election and ballot definition shall be created within the county's Election Management System (EMS).

Election and ballot definition information shall be exported from the county's EMS for import into the EBDS.

Once exported from the EMS, the election definition shall not be changed. Any needed changes in the election definition must be made in the county's EMS.

EBDS shall have a method to allow access to voters with a disability.

EBDS ballot shall not contain the voter's identification, or any information which would allow someone to identify the person who marked the ballot.

If present, the optional 2D barcode on the EBDS ballot shall contain the identical votes as visually displayed of the voter's choices on the EBDS ballot.

If present, the optional 2D barcode shall not contain the voter's identification, or any information which would allow someone to identify the person who marked the ballot.

Verification: EBDS must satisfy the minimum required specifications in two major sections; county administration and voter interaction. In addition, EBDS must satisfy the required specifications for automatic ballot duplication using a barcode, if available. There are no required specifications for EBDS auditing or tracking services.

County administration:

- Provides a macro-level description of EBDS.
  - Provides EBDS process flow.
  - Identifies the level of election official's education and computer skill.
  - Identifies any allowable accesses to EBDS (e.g., smart phones), and any limitations.
  - Identifies the capability for assistive technology (e.g., display reader).
  - Identifies any limitations for size of the paper ballot.
  - Optional - allows a barcode of vote selections on the ballot and defines its location and content.

  - Method for uploading required Florida voter certifications.
  - Method for uploading text with multiple languages.
    - Maximum text length.
    - Fonts with strike through and underline.
    - Maximum number of languages available.
  - Optional files:
    - County icon or other graphic file.
    - Informational text files.
    - Help files.
- Provides a micro-level description that allows an election official to produce EBDS ballots.
  - Method to upload the required voting system files.
  - Provide the capability for precinct splits.
- Provide a method to upload the voter registration file.
  - Step by step instructions for creating the voter credentials.
  - Instructions for uploading the voter credentials.
  - Instructions for updating the voter credentials.
- Step by step instructions for creating the election definition and/or ballot styles.
  - Step by step instructions for creating a ballot template, if applicable.
    - Location of the title.
    - Location of the voter instruction.
    - Contest order.
    - Contest demarcation method.
    - Location of the voter targets.
    - Method to select text font and font size on the paper ballot.
  - Step by step instructions for a closed primary election.
    - Step by step instructions for creating a county-wide universal primary contest (UPC).
    - Step by step instructions for creating a district-wide UPC.
  - Step by step instructions for a general election.
    - Step by step instructions for a write-in.
    - Step by step instructions for a multiple write-ins in a contest.
  - Method to create an election with multiple languages.
  - Method for adding an optional barcode, if available.
  - Method to verify the election definition or verify the ballot styles.
  - Method to publish the election.

Voter interaction:

- Provides a micro-level description of voter access and assistive technology.
  - Method to log in with voter's choice language from multiple languages.
    - Method for accessing a suspended voter session.
      - ◇ Method to prevent keeping a ballot from a previous session.
    - Method for preventing access to the session data after completing the session.
    - Method for verifying the correct precinct and ballot.
- Provides a means to select a choice.

- Method for toggling or deselecting a choice.
- Method for preventing an overvote selection.
- Method for providing information that a contest has an undervoted contest.
- Method for selecting a write-in.
  - Method for typing the candidate's name.
- Method for the voter to review the selections on the ballot.
  - Method to allow changing selections before printout the ballot.
  - Method to printout the ballot or capture the printout file.
- Verify the optional barcode matches the EBDS ballot's vote selections.
- Verify the optional barcode does not contain any information which could be used to identify the voter of a particular ballot.

Optional automatic ballot duplication, if available:

For EBDS service:

- Provides a micro-level description of the barcode.

For BOD service:

- Provides a micro-level description of utilizing a barcode.
  - List of equipment for automatic ballot duplication.
- Provides a source code for use with the automatic ballot duplication.
- Provides the executable software.
  - Controlled software configuration management.
  - Method to install the executable.
  - Method to verify the installed executable.
- Method of filling in the voter target and tolerance beyond the target, if any.
